

About VV

Launched in 2011, VV's founder and CEO, Richard Rivlin has worked in the Maritime industry for over 40 years including Clarksons and Braemar before setting up S&P shop, Seasure Shipbroking, VV's sister company.

The development of VV was driven by the need from the market to get objective, instant market valuations without having to rely on traditional methods or brokers. During the financial crash of 2008 Richard saw the need for these data driven values and started work on the methodology. After three years of collecting the proprietary data, VV was launched.

Today VV has 150 employees, across 7 offices – London (HQ), Isle of Wight (Data Analysts), Stoke (Development), Singapore (Asia sales), Manila (Research), Xi'an (Research) and Korea (Sales).

VV covers the Shipping, Offshore and Superyacht sectors and core products include vessel values, mapping and tracking, trade, and a vessel and commercial database, offering a complete market intelligence solution on one online, easy to use platform.

VV's clients include the world's leading banks, investment funds, shipowners and operators, lawyers, accountants and more.
